cate problem that has come to the attention of the Treasury Department since the outbreak of the war because of the difficult positions occupied by the neutral nations, especially those of Europe. Secretary McAdoo has been calling expert foreign exchange men to Washington for the inst month in order that the situation may be solved before the second Liberty Loan is offered publicly, but the problem seems no nearer solution now than at the time the request was forwarded to this country.

This plan proposes to place the control of the exchange markets in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board, which would appoint a committee of experts from various sections of the country to deal with the problem. There is already a committee of this nature in extatence, but it has not sufficient powers o enable it to take complete control of foreign exchange. The chairman prob-ably will come from the foreign ex-change department of one of the large banks or trust companies in New York. While the main purpose of this com mittee will be to regulate neutral ex-change as it affects the Allies, con-siderable attention will also be given to exchange between the Allies themselves.
